

OREGON TREATY AND NORTH WEST BOUNDARY.—We have authentic information that the boundary line agreed upon between the U. States and England is 49 deg. and not 49 deg. 30 m., as stated in a previous number. The whole of Vancouver's Island is confirmed to Great Britain. The navigation of Fuca's Straits and Puget's Sound is common to both parties. The navigation of the Columbia River is to remain open to England until the expiration of the Hon. Hudson Bay Co.'s charter, and thereafter all to the south of 49 deg. N. to belong exclusively to the United States.

SALUTES AND VISITS.—Soon after the Columbus dropped anchor, H. B. M.'s ship Juno saluted the Commodore's flag with seventeen guns, which was promptly returned by thirteen.

At 10 o'clock, Thursday, the Columbus exchanged salutes with the fort.

Commodore Biddle has taken up his residence on shore at the mansion of T. H. Stevens, Esquire. On Thursday the Commodore and United States Commissioner called upon the Minister of Foreign Relations and the Minister of Finance at their respective residences.

NAVAL.—H. B. M.'s brig Spy returned on Monday from a short cruise with the Collingwood, having been in company with her two days becalmed under the lee of Hawaii. She brought despatches from the Admiral.

The U. S. ship Vincennes does not visit these Islands. She accompanied the Columbus to Jeddo and parted with her soon after leaving there, for the Ladrões and China, thence home via Cape of Good Hope. She had sickness on board also.

MOST MELANCHOLY.—On Tuesday afternoon John H. Smith, son of the Sergeant of Marines of H. B. M.'s ship Juno, lying in our harbor, while riding on the plain was thrown from his horse and dragged for several miles by his foot in the stirrup. His neck was dislocated and his head beat to pieces by the hoofs of the frightened animal, so that when stopped the unfortunate boy was picked up a mangled corpse. He was a lad of but ten years old, small of his age, a general favorite, and had attracted the attention of our residents.

ACCIDENT.—A daughter of Mr. E. H. Rogers, about five years old, was much burnt on Wednesday morning, by her clothes taking fire from a furnace in the cellar. She ran up stairs to her mother in a distant part of the house with her clothes in flames. There being nothing near with which to extinguish the flames, Mrs. Rogers seized the burning clothes in her hands and stripped them from the child. In so doing she was dreadfully burned, but the child's life was saved, although she remains as yet very feeble.

BRAZILIAN ALOE.—A magnificent specimen of this plant may now be seen in the premises of the United States Commissioner, in full blossom. Within a few weeks it has shot up a stem twenty-five feet or more high, growing a portion of the time at the rate of twelve inches a day. It is the first that has blossomed on this island, and is really worth seeing. The parent plant was brought from St. Catherine's in 1839, in the ship Fama, and taken to Kauai. They are now spreading over the islands, and eventually may be made of value in commerce by the manufacture of cordage from the leaves, as is done elsewhere.

LAND CLAIMED BY MR. CHARLTON.—By the latest advices from England we learn that this disputed land had again claimed the attention of the British Government. All the documents in relation to it, including the results of last year's highly important investigation by command of the King, have been referred to the Law Adviser of the Crown. With such a body of evidence before him, it is not too much to hope that his opinion will lead to the final rendition of justice to the rightful heir.

WRECKED.—Aug. 29th ult., at 8 o'clock, P. M. the coasting schooner Clarion, Capt. Pali, went ashore at Hawaii, about three quarters of a mile south of Keaukoku. The captain and his watch were asleep below at the time. In trying to push her bow off the rocks she swung broadside on, and in a very short time beat to pieces, and entirely disappeared. The chain and anchor only were saved. No lives were lost. She was owned by Capt. Nowliens.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.—"Shingles" is received and will be laid on in season.

"Monitor's" ideas will not suit everybody, but we shall let them have a hearing.

"Quiz" is getting prosy. We hope for something more racy another time.

"J. S. G." is very welcome. We have been awaiting his arrival for some weeks.

THE COLUMBUS AND VINCENTES.—Besides the fresh stock furnished them at Jeddo, as mentioned in our general account, they were supplied with three or four cords of fire wood and 30,000 gallons water. A cordon of armed boats, manned by about 5,000 men were drawn around them and prevented all access to the shore.

A STRANGER.—An American gray squirrel was seen on Thursday afternoon to run across the yard of Honolulu House and enter the cellar. Probably a runaway from some cage.

ORDER IN LAHAINA.—Our correspondent writes us the following gratifying intelligence:

LAHAINA, Sept. 5.

"You cannot imagine how proud we feel in Lahaina once more to see good old quiet times, such as were in the days of Hoapihi. We have no rum, and of course no rows and no noise. It is a rare thing now to see a drunken sailor, or a boisterous, abusive sailor in our streets. All is quiet and peaceful. God grant that we may never again be cursed and afflicted with intoxicating liquors. Oh, why will man, for a few blighting dollars, destroy the peace of a whole community, and fix on the poor sailor the curse of drunkenness and debauchery, by selling that pestiferous poison?"

Where is principle? Where is benevolence? Where is sympathy for sufferers? when men will hold out the glass to their neighbor only to get his money and push him into the gutter, yes, into all that is debasing, degrading and disgusting, into moral wretchedness a thousand fold worse than the filthiest gutter. I do hope no such man will be found in Lahaina henceforward and forever."

Rev. R. Armstrong and family returned from Makawao, Maui, on the 9th, in the Kamehameha III. We have received a communication from that quarter which will have space shortly.

KAMCHATKA.—We have an arrival from this quarter this week, but nothing new except that there was snow there the whole summer in spots, six feet deep.

H. M.'s schooner Hooikaika is now employed in carrying water to the U. States ship Columbus.

Our fair townswoman, Miss Walter, of the Boston Evening Transcript, under date of March 17, ultimo, does us the justice to speak of our situation as government editor in the following honorable terms:—

"SANDWICH ISLANDS.—By a late arrival from Honolulu, news has been received from these Islands up to the first week in November. We have received several numbers of 'The Polynesian'—the government paper, ably edited by our former townswoman, J. J. Jarvis, Esq. This organ is conducted by its editor on strictly independent principles, although the whole printing office is frankly acknowledged to be the property of the Government. 'In selling our establishment to Government,' says Mr. Jarvis, in his journal of Nov. 1st, 'and taking a situation of trust directly from His Majesty, we did it with the full recognition of our freedom of pen as an editor. That infringed upon, and no undue influence in any way attempted, or if attempted, would be allowed. We are equally at liberty to comment upon the public acts or writings of the King's ministers, as those of the diplomatic corps or other official characters who come here, and at all times shall exercise our own judgment as to the nature of the criticisms called for.' This certainly is the right kind of a political independent press, and Mr. Jarvis's writings show that he will be the means hereafter of doing a great good to the prosperity and future advancement of the Hawaiians. He writes forcibly upon the necessity of reciprocal benefits between the native and foreign population, both classes of residents having the same ends in view, and being desirous equally of individual and national prosperity."

MEMORANDA.

Ship Inez got ashore on some rocks in lat 60 N. The captain and some of the crew pulled for the shore. While gone, the ship thumping heavily, frightened the remainder of the crew, and they took to their boats and pulled after him—meeting the captain, they put back to the ship, when, to their surprise, they saw her going off under sail, at the rate of several knots. She had slipped from the rocks, and was at the mercy of the wind, there being no one on board to guide her. After long pulling and much difficulty the crew succeeded in reaching her.

On the 23d of April the ship Champion experienced a heavy gale, during which a sea broke over her, carrying away jib boom, lee bulwarks, galley and cook.

A part of the Lagrange's crew left her when about 500 miles from land in a boat, and are supposed to have perished. The American whale ship Superior, of N. L., had two men killed by a whale this season.
